[S]mall Fry Invade BYU, [Pa]rticipate In Contest

by Dan Clark
Daily Universe Writer

[Bri]gham Young University [was i]nvaded by nearly 80 walk-[ing, c]rawling and toddling small [fry M]onday afternoon.

[Be]aming BYU parents watch-[ed th]eir youngsters participate [in th]ree contests as part of the [baby] derby held in conjunction [with] married couples week.

63 Enter

[A] total of 63 children were [enter]ed in the crawling, stroller [and] costume contests held in [front] of Eyring Science Center [at 3]:30 p. m.

[the g]rass in the crawling derby [was] Steven Christianson, son of [...]n and Phyllis Christianson. [Stev]en made the ten-yard crawl [leavi]ng out two close competi-[tors].

[Dr]apered darlings numbered [up] to 35 in the costume par-[ade] event. Babies attired in a [mul]titude of outfits, some of [the]m depicting their father's fu-[ture] occupation, gave judges a [hard] time choosing the winners. [Win]ning in the most beautiful [divi]sion was Laurie Jacobs, [dau]ghter of Hugh and Ranae [Jaco]bs. Laurie was dressed to [port]ray a May Day girl.

Most Original

[M]ost original entry went to [...] and Brad Jacobs who were [ou]tted in South American [gauc]ho costumes. The two boys [are] sons of Mr. and Mrs. Jac-[obs].

[D]ale Heaton, son of Leroy and [...]er Heaton, won as the fun-[nies]t entrant. He was dressed [as] a little girl.

[St]rollers decorated and push-[ed] by brothers and sisters of those riding in the carts round-ed out the trio of contests. Winning for the most beautiful stroller and baby was Shelee Wilhelm, daughter of Elaine and Guy Wilhelm.

Takes Honors

Taking honors in the funniest division was Julie Ann Hodges, daughter of Jere Dale and Donna Fae Hodges. Ilene Kaye Jensen captured the most original prize. She is the daughter of C. Kent and Ruth Jensen.

Engineering as chairman of the Baby Derby was Shirley Stanford, wife of Ralph Stanford, Los Angeles, Calif. "The whole Baby Derby was very successful," she declared. Judges for the various contests were Dr. Keith Duke, J. Perry Polson and Dunworth Gubler, all BYU faculty members.

Philadelphia Orchestra Ticket Sales Continue For Monday Performance

Reserved seat tickets are on sale now for the world-famous Philadelphia Orchestra under the direction of Eugene Ormandy performance in the Smith Fieldhouse, Monday at 8:15 p. m.

Gives Concert

Philadelphia Orchestra gave its first concert in 1900 under the direction of a German musician, Fritz Scheel.

Ormandy, the fourth permanent conductor, has led the group for 20 years.

"Philadelphia" became the first symphony orchestra to record under its own name and with its own conductor. It was the first established symphony orchestra to broadcast over a nation-wide network for a commerical sponsor, 1929, and the first to be televised, CBS, 1948.

Recently the orchestra completed a 35-day tour of Belgium, Holland, France, Spain, Portugal, Italy, Switzerland, Austria, Germany, Sweden, and Finland.

Breaks Isolation

Climax of this tour occurred when Jean Sibelius, great Finnish composer, dramatically broke his 20-year period of isolation to invite Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra to his home in the suburbs of Helsinki. Sibelius said of the Philadelphia's music, "It was grand; it was perfection."

Tickets are available through the Brigham Young University ticket office in the Smith Fieldhouse. Prices are $3.50 and $2. All tickets are reserved.

MUSICIANS TO PERFORM—Members of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Eugene Ormandy, will perform at BYU Monday at 8:15 in Smith Fieldhouse. The group of expert musicians are appearing as a part of the BYU Community Concert Series for 1956-57.

Husbands Try Baking Skill In Cake Contest

Student family men of Brigham Young University will don chefs' hats and aprons Wednesday for the Married Couples' Week men's cake baking contest.

According to committee co-chairmen Bud Klenk and Ralph Stanford, contestants will be vying for two trophies, best cake and most original cake. The most original division is divided into two parts, the prettiest cake and the ugliest cake, (cake most likely to last).

Entries must be in the lobby of Eyring Science Center at 2 p. m., Wednesday.

Judges for the event, who are experts at cooking up things themselves, will be Duane Hiatt and Verland Whipple.

Police Get Bird

The Security Office is playing unwilling nursemaid to a pastel parakeet found loitering two feet off the ground in Wymount village.

The pint-sized prisoner, apparently miffed by police action, "ain's talkin'" and just pecks at his (?) food. Students who have recently misplaced parakeets are asked to claim the pygmy fowl soon.

[Ba]nyan Staff Declares [Fin]al Payment Deadline

[F]inal Banyan payments are [du]e Monday, according to Bus-[ine]ss Manager Dick Phelps.

Payments must be made [at] the cashier's office in the [Ma]eser Building before this [da]te or partial payment will [be] forfeited, according to pre-[vio]us agreement.

Distribution date has been [set] for May 23 and 24.

Applications are now avail-[ab]le for next year's Banyan [sta]ff. Many positions are open, [ac]cording to John Paget, next [ye]ar's business manager.

[...] Social Units [C]arry Out [C]ourt Penalty

Members of the Alcyone and [Athe]nian social units ,in carry-[ing] out a positive sentence hand-[ed] down by the Inter-organiza-[tio]n Council Court, cleared [we]eds away from 70 large land-[ing] lights at the Provo City [Mu]nicipal Airport Thursday.

According to Gary William-[son], Athenian president, tools [we]re provided by the Brigham [Yo]ung University building and [gro]unds department for the job [wh]ich required two hours labor [fro]m the 100 social unit mem-[be]rs.

Williamson said the units [we]re penalized for failure to [co]mply with rushing rules, in [th]at they handed membership [lis]ts into the IOC two days late.

Merrill Christopherson, Pro-[vo] airport director, said the job [w]as "well done" by the units. [He] said he appreciated their help [ve]ry much in providing a more [vi]sible and safe landing strip for [Pr]ovo.

The project of clearing the [lig]hts was one which had origin-[al]ly been scheduled on Y Day [fo]r the BYU studentbody.

Brigadoon 'Reappears' On Campus . . .

Musical Play Opens Wednesday

by Jean Whiting
Daily University Writer

"Brigadoon" opens Wednesday at 8:15 p. m in the Smith Auditorium. It will run through Saturday.

In the play two American hunters lose their way in the Scotch Highlands and stumble into Brigadoon, a small mythical village which is the object of a miracle.

By means of the miracle the village is located in the misty highland fogs between the earth and sky. It sleeps for one hundred years at a time and comes back to earth one day each century.

Lovers Doomed

Tommy, one of the hunters played by Dr Lael Woodbury, falls in love with a village maiden, Fiona, played by Louise Johnson, Buhl, Ida They are doomed to part forever, because he cannot remain in Brigadoon and she cannot leave it.

Popular songs from the show include "Waiting for My Dearie," "The Heather on the Hill," "Almost Like Being In Love," "There But For You Go I," "From This Day On" and the title song, "Brigadoon."

Sets of the mythical village were designed by Jed Richardson and their construction was supervised by Robert Struthers.

There are no breaks between 10 scenes. Sets are shifted during the interlude music preceding the scenes.

Realistic and mystic sets are used to fit the script. The play opens in the forest. Through the use of scrim curtains and trick lighting the forest fades and Brigadoon appears.

Directs Cast

Dr. Harold I Hansen,, chairman of the speech department, directed the production. Dr. Don Earl, director of opera workshop, was in charge of the musical phase of the show.

Costumes were designed by Winifred Bowers. They are representative of the colorful Scottish clothes of the period including kilts and plaids.

Brigadoon Settings Add To Musical

Sets for this year's musical, Brigadoon ,are among the most extravagant constructed by the Speech Department, according to the designer and set director, Jed Richardson of public relations.

After the initial first act curtain the curtain will remain closed throughout the entire play, said Richardson.

This is accomplished by the use of two scrims and of the lighting facilities in the Smith Auditorium.

Richardson was first given the job last December Since then he has been working and "dreaming" about the sets, which have taken about one month to complete.

A NEW TRADITION

Here's to the Wymount brat with dirt on his face. Here's to the harried wife scurrying between diaper changes and a pot boiling over . . . . . to the gal who can stretch the budget to its popping limit and still wear a smile. And, here's to the fellow who jumped fearlessly from blissful dorm and unit life to a life of burpings, working and studying.

NOT ICING ON CAKE

Married people may not be the icing of the campus cake, but who could say they aren't the solid insides of a teeming community full of all kinds.

For many years there has been much talk, especially among the marrieds themselves, that they need to be a more active part in university activities. Talk doesn't get people far at times, and the status of married people at Brigham Young University has been dead as empty talk can be.

However, this year has marked a distinct break in that stiff armor of inactivity that has encased married encampments at BYU since the great post-war influx.

Other institutions have backed all sorts of plans for keeping the marrieds a happy part of the big team. This has been done with mild bu[t] not encouraging success. At BYU the case ha[s] been a refreshing revelation of the "do-i[t] yourself" attitude so typical of healthy, independent people.

ONCE HOT TOMATO

The job has been tackled by the gal wh[o] once was the hottest dish on campus walk[s] who is now tired 25 hours a day with kid[s] sore-eyed husbands and bills to worry abou[t] . . . . and the part-time father and constantl[y] busy student husband.

If the enthusiastic response to Monday['s] kickoff events for married couples week is an indication, this period of honoring those brav[e] enough to tackle family and college at the sam[e] time will become an integral tradition of th[e] BYU activity calendar.

For a people and university continually extolling the virtues of marriage, it is pleasing to see the fruits of this expressed desire as the prime examples invade the campus from their valley retreat of Wymount for a week of activities and a justly deserved honor.

NEW YORK—INS—The passing show . . .

In church the other day a mother with a restless, talkative l[itt]le boy seemed so upset by the child that I thought she might s[ha]ke him. Every once in a while, when he crawled down be[ne]ath the bench, she'd pull him up and set him down with a bang. S[h]e shushed him when he haid "mama," and scolded him when [h]e looked fondly at the father sitting next to him and waved and [sai]d, during the sermon, "Daddy'"

Kept Thinking

I kept thinking of an incident [on a] plane not long ago A well-[dre]ssed woman carried a hand[so]me little boy of two or three [in] her arms to a seat and placed t[he] child on her lap.

The husband, having put the [ba]gs in the rack up front, came [ba]ck, kissed her goodbye, bent [ove]r the silent child, and said, [slow]ly and fondly—stretching [out] each word—"We will go [swi]mming soon, right, son?" The [chi]ld stared back uncomprehen[dingly].

[Th]e father left the plane and [stoo]d behind the wire outside, w[aiti]ng until we started The [chi]ld, implored to wave back, [re]ma[i]ned motionless There must [hav]e been a 15 minute wait. [Dur]ing the last five minutes the [mot]her of the boy held him to [the] plane window and whisper[ed] "Say bye-bye . . say bye- . . . say daddy . . . daaa-

[Th]e poor little guy gurgled a [bit] but could make no other [sou]nd. The propellers spun and [we] moved away The father was [wa]ving

Made Friends

[M]ichael J Ready, Catholic [Bis]hop of Columbus O., who [die]d late last week, was a re[mar]kably learned and person[able] man who made and kept [thou]sands of friends in all walks [and] [...] of life During the [trou]bles his church had in Mexico years ago, he roamed through that country "looking like a bum," as he put it, getting a first hand account of the murders of priests and nuns One slip and he himself would have died.

Back Up

Dear Editor:

Since the social year is about over this may be the wrong time to mention what I have to say, but better late than never.

The inconsiderate behavior of most of us students during the intermission of a dance has been very noticeable this year

As soon as the announcer mentions that intermission is about to begin there is a mad rush toward the announcer's stand. As a result there is a delay while trying to persuade the would be spectators to move back so that the performers will have enough room and so that a few more people will be able to watch.

If you would like to see the benefits of a considerate audience, attend one of the Saturday night dances at the East Provo Stake House where an audience of predominantly high school age shames the behavior of any audience attending a BYU dance.

At our next dance let's show a little of the maturity we are supposed to have developed here at school and, instead of running toward the announcer the minute he announces intermission, back up to the wall.

Dick Stewart

Thanks

Dear President Wilkinson.

As City Manager, and in behalf of the City Council and people of Provo, we wish to express our appreciation for the fine service rendered Provo City by the BYU students on Y Day.

It was extremely beneficial to us to have the work at the boat harbor accomplished in record time, including the eliminating of weeds, trees, digging holes, setting posts, tearing down the old bridge and painting the new one as well as the rest rooms. The other work at the swimming pool, cemetery, golf course, sewage disposal plant, etc., is also very much appreciated.

We are deeply grateful for your fine cooperation in this project, and hope that a similar project may be carried on from year to year.

Sincerely yours,
E. Earl Udall
City Manager, Provo

Dear Sir, I respectfully call you[r] attention to the article in th[e] April 30 Universe regarding th[e] naming of Heritage Halls.

Your writer names two different women has having serve[d] as first counselor in the first general Relief Society Presidency. How come?

The writer also states that Eliza R. Snow was the first genera[l] president of the Relief Society. If you'll take a look into churc[h] history you'll find that 18 women were organized into the firs[t] Woman's Relief Society in [a] room above the Prophet Joseph'[s] store in March 1842 and tha[t] Emma Hale Smith was the firs[t] president.

Polio 'Fraidy Cat' Runs Risk

Associated College Poll

College administrators across the country have been lamenting the lack of persons who came to health services for polio shots.

Why don't they come, they ask. The usual scapegoat—apathy—generally gets the credit

But one University of Texas student tells the "Daily Texan" in no uncertain terms what he believes the reason is.

"I believe I can enlighten you on why the majority of students have neglected to take their polio shots It's very simple. They are cowards! Sissies! Fraidie cats!"

"The horrible truth is that they are afraid of the tiny sticks of a hypodermic needle.

"I can indeed sympathize My father is a doctor My mother is a nurse. I feel like a sieve. Throughout my life I have been injected with vats of cold serum, penicillin . . . have had blood drawn in gobs . . . I have a terrific allergy for needles and had just as soon be hit by a street-car as to be 'stuck.'

Service Grant Applications Due On Friday

Applications for the Intercollegiate Knights' eight service awards will be accepted until 5 p. m. Friday, according to Eugene Jones, chairman of the service award committee.

The committee plans to select eight students to be the recipients of the $960 tuition money. The awards are to be based on criterion of service performed for Brigham Young University. The committee will consider grade points only in the event of a close decision.

One male student and one female ... award to cover full tuition for male student will be granted an next year. In addition to these full year awards there are six single quarter scholarships being offered.

All interested students are encouraged to pick up application blanks at the Inter-organization Council office in the basement of Clark Student Service Center. The award selections are still open, particularly among the coeds, Jones concluded.

The Missionary and Preparatory Building, later known as the Art Building and now as B. Y. High, dedicated in 1904, was built at a cost of $13,000.

The beginning of the Brigham Young University upper campus came in 1907 when the school purchased seventeen acres of land from Provo City for $1000.

DON THORUP

Our hats are off to all those who attended Friday's track meet and witnessed the scalping of the Utes. It was like sweet music to hear the Cats cheered on to victory.

The Cougars sharpened their claws, dug in their spikes, and rolled up the most lopsided score of the year. It was of interest to note the fine work of Coach Clarencce Robison's freshman spikesters.

A lot has been said of the strong depth of this year's team; the freshmen provide a lot of it. A number of first places are turned in each meet by these "kitten" cindermen. Gary Griffiths, a frosh standout, has won the two mile each time he has run it, and continued his winning streak by outdistancing all opponents in the AAU meet Saturday.

Griffiths, Marcus Neilson, John Quinnett, and Wayne Chamberlain, all freshmen, could become the top men in BYU history in their respective events.

The five special event stars who entered the Intermountain AAU spikefest thrilled the sparse crowd, and provided interesting delights. Charley Dumas, world's high jump record holder and only man to ever clear seven feet, leaped 6 ft. 8 in. in basketball shoes, before changing into track shoes to attempt 6 ft 10 in.

Milt Campbell, Olympic decathalon champion, clipped off the high hurdles in 13.9, tying the special event record in that event. During the discus event Campbell threw the sphere back to the contestants farther than it was thrown originally.

Dave Parker,aceCougarhigh hurdle man, took one high jump with his warm-up suit on, cleared 6 feet, and tied for fourth place at the AAU.

COACH ALLAN DAVIS

"The greatest opportunity of my life is probably working with the football staff of Brigham Young University," commented Allan Davis, backfield coach.

In hi spursuit for the best coaching talent in the state, Coach Harold Kopp put a finger on Allan Davis, veteran helmsman at Murray High School. Davis was added to the Cougar staff in March 1956.

A native of Utah Valley, Davis attended prep school at Payson. In addition to being studentbody president he was an all-state quarterback in football.

At Utah University he was a physical education major and won all-conference honors as a quarterback.

Just completing his first year at BYU, Davis is football backfield coach, head wrestling coach and instructor of health and physical education classes
